Speaker: JERRY KILL, Rutgers University Offensive Coordinator
Coach Kill is the Offensive Coordinator at Rutgers University and coaches the quarterbacks as well. He spent five seasons as head coach at Minnesota earning Big Ten Coach of the Year honors in 2014. A three-time national coach of the year honoree with 30 years of experience, he guided the Gophers to three bowl games in four and a half seasons. Coach Kill and his wife, Rebecca, have been dedicated to helping kids with Epilepsy through the Epilepsy Foundation of Minnesota. In addition, he and Phil Gattone, President and CEO of the Epilepsy Foundation, are partnering to support the much-needed drive for Epilepsy research. Coach Kill, as well as millions of people throughout the country, is bravely living with Epilepsy. He is spearheading an effort to create an early seizure warning system designed to assess the likelihood of a seizure hours before it happens.
